Gender, Masculinity, and Lawyers’ Professional Relationships: U.S. and Abroad
Empirical project in which I am interviewing lawyers in all types of legal work in the U.S. and abroad to consider the effect of gender on working conditions of lawyers. I am exploring how law and culture affect gendered work relations “on the ground,” and comparing the results in different countries. Interviews for the first phase of this project, which occurred January 2017 – June 2017, in Chile and Spain are completed. I interviewed lawyers in Denmark in fall 2019, and I am currently interviewing lawyers in various U.S. cities.
