Workplace Law Concentration Letter of Intent

Writing Requirement

Take a core or elective course above through which the student produces a paper/project that deals specifically with labor and/or employment law, subject to the approval of the Co-Directors, which would meet the standards of Boyd's Capstone Writing Requirement.

Participation Requirements

Attend and participate in a minimum of two Workplace Law programs per year offered at Boyd. A list of such programs will be published on the Workplace Law website. Join and participate in the activities of the Workplace Law Association.

Procedure and Certification

Upon deciding to concentrate in Workplace Law, the student should schedule a meeting with one of the Co-Directors of the Workplace Law Concentration (WLC), Professor Ann McGinley or Professor Ruben Garcia, to plan how he or she will meet the Concentration's requirements as well as completing this letter of intent. Upon completion of the WLC requirements, and before graduation, the student needs to submit an application form in My BoydLaw (login required), certifying completion of certification requirements with signatures of the Co-Directors of the student's concentration completion.
